There are significant differences in the optical properties of metal-organic frameworks (MOFs) and conventional materials, such as dyes, as a result of the unique structures and molecular orbitals of MOFs. These differences make it possible to synthesize novel MOF materials with functional optical properties. Here, we have developed a series of novel MOFs whose light-emitting color can be tuned by a large range by controlling their structural symmetry in order to examine the mechanism of light emission. We found that the light emission is not simply a direct transition from the HOMO to the LUMO, but rather it results from a sum of several peaks. By using these materials, it is possible to design novel light-emitting MOFs or even to achieve a device that converts visible light to electricity.Developmental effects of folic acid deficiency on mouse embryos cultured in vitro. 1. Incubation of mouse embryos in the presence of 0, 5.6 or 13.8 nmol of 5-formyltetrahydrofolate/ml medium was performed from 10-11 to 14-15 days of gestation. 2. Folate deficiency had no apparent effect on the length of gestation, however, embryonal growth retardation, particularly brain weight reduction and deciduous tooth loss, was observed in the deficiency groups. 3. The frequency of chorioamnionitis was significantly higher in the 13.8 nmol group than in the other two groups. 4. From these results, it was suggested that the folate requirement of embryos was maintained by the placental folate transport system. 5. The results also suggested that the chorioamnionitis was induced by inflammatory-like reactions in the fetuses.An Afghan Air Force pilot is being hailed a hero for his heroic actions in saving the lives of 24 passengers aboard a German plane that went down over the country's capital.
