Now this bitmap has got 4 corners in the same location, and once the image is viewed by the user there should be an "Save" button which saves the new image. The user clicks this "Save" button and we save this new bitmap image on the SD card. The problem is that I am able to save the new bitmap image, but when I try to view the view the page I get the following error: Image File Name validation failed : DEVsampleNEW.jpg NOTE: The bitmap image being displayed on the view is the "new" one, i.e DEVsampleNEW.jpg The code for saving the bitmap image is: if (bitmap

Waterwolf is a lightweight browser with a low resource consumption. It's a "clean" browser designed to find the best balance between performance and usability. Waterwolf is a free, open source browser, based on the Chromium browser. It uses Mozilla Firefox's Gecko layout engine, and it isn't feature complete like other browsers, so it won't have all the fancy menus and plugin support. It will work well for browsing with videos, audio, images and the like. Discussion Forum ThreadSubscribe to the Google News Feed The worst form of Democrat-Media propagandists is the fake news journalist, but they are more dangerous than any other. They are the soul of the Dem-Media and Democratic Party's Orwellian social-media and propaganda machine. The Daily Caller published an op-ed by former Department of Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson. The writer for the Daily Caller portrayed the 'Islamic Terrorist' Orlando gunman as an 'Innocent American' (a.k.a. bait and switch); Mr. Johnson wrote, "[T]he shooter has no ties to ISIS, to Al Qaeda, or to an international terrorist group. He was also not on the radar of any foreign terrorist organization." The writing is so dastardly, that it is difficult to understand how The Daily Caller could believe this writer's words and display it on its front page. With the writer's own dishonest statement, the Daily Caller sold the American public a swindle, a farce, and a lie. The citizenry must understand that it is the Democrat-Media's PROLOGUIZ that does not want the American public to see the simple truth; Orlando was an Islamic Terrorist attack, and the shooter was a Muslim Syrian refugee. How could the 'news' journalist from the Daily Caller believe the official 'news' from the Obama Regime's Homeland Security Department? The terrorist's name was: Omar Mateen. He was born in Queens, New York on September 29th, 1986. He was, by his own admission, an immigrant from Guyana. He is not an American citizen. In short, the 'news' journalist's publication who bought the lies from the Obama Regime's Homeland Security Department (with the help of the Democrat-Media's propaganda machine) is wrong. Omar Mate
