Do not be scared. Apple Pro Res supports UHD (3840 x 2160) and the remaining ratio has the same ratio as the 1920 x 1080 of 32:9. So, 3840 x 2160 is a lovely resolution; Apple Pro Res is in the same level as Ultra HD 4K of 4096 x 2160 and 16:9 aspect. 4K is a highest resolution we have ever had and we're going to know what those three numbers mean. 4K is a resolution of 3840 x 2160 Apple Pro Res is a codec used in films and videos Apple Pro Res is a codec which I thought the same was called a 4K. Well, to make the story simple, it isn't the same. 4K is 3840 x 2160, and this is a relatively higher resolution than the current 1080P in 1920 x 1080 Resolutions are not big problems Why not upgrade to 4K? Why do people say 4K is so expensive? Is it more expensive than 1080P? Why does the resolution matter so much? What is the difference between 4K and 1080P? 4K is the highest resolution 4K could get. That means that 4K is very high in terms of vertical resolution but the horizontal resolution has less difference than normal HD. When you look at the resolution of many video editing software's, 4K is in the highest range. This happens because the software uses ultra high definition graphics. Most people say 4K is expensive and high quality, in this case, it's accurate but people still say 4K is expensive. Saying that 4K is expensive or a higher resolution is wrong. Why are people doing this? That's because there's no more than 1080P in 1080P, which is just called a standard. When you look at it, as long as the quality is high, all resolutions are pretty similar. So that's how you should take it. There are some people who say 4K is too expensive in terms of money, but are there people who pay a lot of money for those high quality? I think there are. Apple Pro Res supports UHD (3840 x 2160) and the remaining ratio has the same ratio as the 1920 x 1080 of 32:9. So, 3840 x 2160 is a lovely resolution; Apple Pro Res is in the same level as Ultra HD 4K of 4096 x 2160 and 16:9 aspect. 4K is a highest resolution 3a67dffeec
