Unlocking features such as Customizable Control via "Tactics Mode" and previously-exclusive Player Intelligence features such as "Fitness" and "Innovative Player Behaviour" is now possible in FIFA 22 after tapping into the underlying data collected from real players in motion. "HyperMotion Technology" unlocks up to 16 movement patterns for up to 14 players, meaning a full squad can be controlled by its own movement patterns rather than repeating the same game play. This will allow players to express their own unique styles and capabilities through unique movement patterns. In addition, Dynamic and Hyper-Dribbling will be replaced with the "Pass and Create" system, which allows players to accelerate ball control with a more varied footwork. This feature will enable players to close faster and increase the number of dribbles he/she can perform. As with all editions of FIFA, FIFA Ultimate Team Manager will be included with the title. This version of FUT Manager will feature customizable controls, new ways to manage your squad, friendlies, and will allow users to control up to 5 different teams as they work towards achieving their dream squad. Exclusively in FIFA 22 is "Warm-up Matches," a new feature that will allow users to play 10 "Warm-up Matches" to test out their play style before they take on their friends or the World's best. These Warm-up Matches will be included with the title when it launches on October 19th, 2018, and will allow users to test out more than 40,000 player stats and Training Plans. Alongside the feature additions and gameplay improvements, FIFA 22 will also offer the most featured gameplay modes in the franchise's history, including the return of the popular FIFA 18 Online Pro Club mode, Ultimate Team Leagues, and new dynamic Ultimate Team style modes. The new "Warm-up Matches" feature, will provide users the ability to train with their friends or even make fun challenges with their long-time rivalries using the new "Warm-Up Challenge".
