What's new in Maneater: Truth Quest:

+ 3 Special Sprites Aired on October 7, 1999 Carrie is testing an Internet dating site. (This is what happens when you have to escape the Matrix.) Carrie is joining a group chat with Jeffrey and her friends, while her computer screen shows the chat room. People can type to other people, and certain bits of text will be displayed on Jeff's computer, which can be seen through his monitor. Back at her house, she's talking with a guy on the Internet. (Thoughts: BDSM chat rooms are gaining popularity.) Carrie gets an anonymous text message. (Weirdly enough, this is before Jeff starts trying to send to Carrie.) Jeff makes a surprise visit. Carrie accompanies Jeffrey to a "massage" school. (Thoughts: There's also a school called the School of the Art Institute of Chicago that appears to impart advanced knowledge in performing make up and other makeup skills.) Carrie and the other girls watch people giving interviews in the studio. Jeff and Carrie are in a car. (Thoughts: Now that the scenario makes more sense.) They do some more make up. (Thoughts: Perhaps it's a school with rivalries like the School of the Art Institute of Chicago (above).) Some other stuff from the extras: The clothes Carrie is wearing are the same clothes from the previous scene. (Thoughts: Maybe she stole some clothes? It would be understandable why she would steal clothes, since she's there to work on a movie.) Random chat room information. (Thoughts: This is the same thing that the user saw in the previous scene.) Carrie and the others are goofing off in a car. (Thoughts: First of all, this is an unbelievable euphemism for a car in which people want to rape your wife. I like to feel as if rape is something a car driver can get away with occasionally.) The girls are in a make up store. (Thoughts: I don't believe this was here from the beginning because it would be too confusing. If it was a hidden scene, it would have been similar to previously.) Jeff and Carrie are going to costume theater. (Thoughts: I didn't realize Carrie was actually going to go to a movie until I looked at the DVD case after watching the extras. I think her plan for the evening was to go to the
