Pb (Pb++) in water is one of the major environmental concerns. The aim of this study was to evaluate the Pb and Ca interactions in rat embryos of different embryonic stages during organogenesis. Fifty-three pregnant rats were randomized into four experimental groups of 10 dams each. Treatment groups received water (control), 2 mg Pb/l (Pb), 2 mg Pb and 0.075 mg Ca/l (Pb + Ca) and 1 mg Pb and 0.15 mg Ca/l (Pb + Ca/Ca). Eggs were collected on days 10, 13 and 16 of gestation. Embryos were weighed, blood was collected and investigated for Ca and Mg concentrations by atomic absorption spectrophotometry. Embryos exposed to Pb during organogenesis showed significantly decreased viability on days 10, 13 and 16. Pb treatment decreased serum Ca in fetuses on day 10 and 13 and increased serum Mg on days 10 and 16. As the Ca concentrations increase, the Mg concentrations decrease. Pb-exposed fetuses had increased Ca and decreased Mg concentrations on day 10. On day 16, increased Ca and decreased Mg concentrations were found in Pb-exposed fetuses. Ca and Mg are co-dependent for the Ca/Mg-dependent enzymes' activity. Pb treatment altered Ca/Mg balance in fetuses on days 10, 13 and 16. These results indicate that, early in pregnancy, Pb exposure results in a disturbed Ca/Mg balance and may increase the risk of teratogenic effects and developmental arrest."Funnyman" Actor and comedian Jay Leno said on Thursday he is most likely going to go ahead and shut

The focus of the game is on character art and lighting, and while the game is meant to be played at 60 fps, the best possible 4K resolution for that (to my knowledge) is not yet available, so on my monitor at least
