WWE.com (WWE) The WWE.com website is owned by the American entertainment company World Wrestling Entertainment, Inc. (WWE), which is known for professional wrestling and entertainment. On the site, there is the Official Website of WWE, as well as the official website for the WWE Network. The domain was originally created in 1997 and was acquired in 1998 by InterActiveCorp (IAC), which is now a unit of Bertelsmann AG. In 2005, it was bought by WWE for $14 million and rebranded. The page was redesigned in 2010. Ownership history 1997–2001: InterActiveCorp (IAC), which was originally a division of Bertelsmann AG. 2001–2005: IAC's Google subsidiary GOOGLE acquired the domain. 2006: WWE purchased the domain for $14 million from GOOGLE. Website features The site has four sections, with the latest content at the top. The main section, World Wrestling Entertainment is the home page, which displays the latest news and announcements about WWE's television shows, music releases, and other events hosted by WWE. This page also includes a video feed of the ring walk preceding a pay-per-view event or the video broadcast of an interview with a WWE talent. There is also a television guide section where a user can search for TV shows, view program listings, and record shows for later replay. The WWE Shop is a section where the majority of WWE merchandise can be purchased. This includes t-shirts, sweatshirts, DVDs, videocassettes, magazines, and posters. In some cases, wrestlers appear in their own merchandise. This is primarily seen in the company's posters, which are highly sought after. The merchandise section also includes autographed products, which include merchandise signed by specific wrestlers. The United Kingdom section is dedicated to WWE's UK division, and includes information about British wrestlers and any available UK merchandise. The site also has pages for each of WWE's flagship brands, including the World Wrestling Federation, the World Wrestling Federation/Entertainment, the World Wrestling All-Stars, the SmackDown brand, and the Raw brand. The AOL portion of the website contains extensive reference articles about professional wrestling, as well as a column called "WWE Update," which is similar to WWE Update and is focused on WWE's online services and online video programming. On October 18, 2009, the website was updated to include sections for the
