I have an expensive function that I want to run in the background on form load. I want it to be sent back the results of this function to the form, and have it display them. How do I do that? For example, in MatLab: `observer = figure('Position',[300,300,400,400]); handles.observer.Data = load('some_file.txt');` I want to do that in C++. A: If you want to access a variable from outside the constructor I would recommend you to make your member variable a static variable. You would do something like: `class Frame { static int variable; //...your codes here };` And in your constructor you would do it like this: `Frame::variable = 3;` This way the variable can be accessed outside the class. `/ Copyright (C) 2020 The Android Open Source Project * Licensed under the Apache License, Version 2.0 (the "License"); * you may not use this file except in compliance with the License. * You may obtain a copy of the License at * * * * Unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing, software * distributed under the License is distributed on an "AS IS" BASIS, * WITHOUT WARRANTIES OR CONDITIONS OF ANY KIND, either express or implied. * See the License for the specific language governing permissions and * limitations under the License. */` package com.android.

is fake, and he doesn't know who's making it. The original post is below.] The Ohio House of Representatives has unanimously passed a bill that would legalize the possession of a dangerous dog. If it becomes law, this legislation would make Ohio the 18th state to legalize dangerous dog ownership. The bill has now moved to the state Senate. The bill would allow dangerous dogs to be owned as long as the owner certifies that they are registered, vaccinated, and if proof of rabies vaccination is provided, show proof of current rabies vaccination. Dangerous dogs would need to be house-trained and stay away from other dogs and people. There is also a provision under the bill that would allow dangerous dog owners to keep the dog's license plate on their car, meaning that anyone could be potentially liable for the dog if the dog gets loose. Opponents of the bill have started circulating a photo, claiming that it's a picture of an actual dangerous dog in Ohio. The activists believe that the bill is dangerous for animals and the community. However, House Bill 228 does not require the license plate on the dog to be visible. It also does not allow owners to have non-restricted dogs, so any non-restricted dog - even a small dog - would be considered a dangerous dog. Check out the photo below. Do you know who the dogs are? [ORIGINAL POST: There has been a recent spike
