Isla Bela Isla Bela () is a tropical island in northeast Panama which belongs to the province of Veraguas. It is a national park containing a vast number of birds, particularly herons and is listed in the World Heritage List. Geography The island is long and wide. It is located between the Gulf of Chiriquí and Gulf of Urabá at latitude. Its average elevation is above sea level. The island is composed of a limestone plateau with some active volcanoes and two smaller tepuis (mountains) whose summits are covered with vegetation. Climate The island has a tropical climate with an average temperature of 27 °C (81 °F). The highest temperature recorded there was 34.2 °C (93.7 °F) in June 1999. There are up to 575 mm (22.5 in) of annual rainfall. History The island was first reported in the mid-17th century by Spanish explorers, who described it as the island (Isla) of enormous size, which they called Isla Veragua. In the early 1800s, the island was the site of the Battle of Isla Bella. Biology The island has more than 1,800 species of birds, 34 species of mammals, and more than 1,500 species of plants. The wetland forest in the north is the only area on the island that is a protected natural park. The island is one of four places in Panama with the most important populations of Greater Antillean crested pigeons (Treron deformis) in the world. The island has also been studied for its population and distribution of invasive species, for example of the exotic Brazilian waterweed (Elodea canadensis), that has changed habitats of freshwater cichlids. Visitors The island is a popular tourist destination.
