The result is a photograph that's literally "macro." If you have a camera that has an internal macro lens, be sure that you're using it. While these lenses bring you closer to things, they aren't perfect. Rather than focus the lens on objects, they bring them into focus. If you don't see the image on screen, you'll need a macro lens attached. This rule is mostly for the people who have tablets. As per our existing policy we are not allowing anyone to download it, but you can use the web browser from your smart phone.
